For review by the ethics committee

A confidential wellbeing check with nurse call-back and early warning for enrolled students of the Defence College of Health Sciences (DCHS), NDU-Kenya

Principal investigator: WEDAH

BSc Nursing with Military Health, Defence College of Health Sciences (DCHS), National Defence University-Kenya

Registration number: [to be added] Supervisor: [to be added]

October 2026

Items in [square brackets] are to be completed before submission. The questionnaires in Part B are generated from the same file that runs the phone app, so what you read here is exactly what respondents see.

Contents

Part A. Your protections (read first); information sheet and consent for students

Part B. Questionnaires (as shown on the phone): B1 DCHS student wellbeing check; B2 Private check-in (repeat about every four weeks); B3 Weekly pulse; B4 End-of-pilot feedback

Part C. Expert review sheet for the wording of the questions; how printed copies are handled; suggestions register

Part D. Safety protocol; colour bands and scoring; objectives-to-tools matrix; cost and service log template

Annex. Tools for later phases that are NOT used in this study (serving personnel, family members, key informants, Delphi) are available on request and need an ethics amendment

How to read the questionnaires. Every question is numbered. ☐ marks a tick-box answer. “Ask only if…” shows when a question appears. “Adaptive” shows questions that appear only when earlier answers are above a set level (this shortens the check for most people). “Sensitive” marks questions that always include “Prefer not to say”. Students never type a name, admission number or phone number into a questionnaire. Three open suggestion boxes are included so that students can say what should change.

Readability. The questions were written in plain English at about a Grade 6 to 7 reading level. A Kiswahili version of the crisis and help messages is built into the app; a full Kiswahili translation of the questionnaires, with back-translation, is planned after approval.

Placeholders. Phone numbers shown as +2547xxxxxxxx are placeholders to be replaced with real nurse, duty officer and support-office numbers when the service is adopted.

PART A. YOUR PROTECTIONS, INFORMATION SHEET AND CONSENT

Your protections (read this before you decide)

Before you are asked to agree to anything, these are the promises made to you.

1. You choose. You can say no, skip any question, or stop at any time. Nothing will happen to you.

2. This is not an assessment. It does not affect your marks, progression, discipline, sponsorship, posting or place.

3. No name. No name, admission number, service number or phone number is stored with your answers. You get a private code.

4. Staff cannot see you. Lecturers, commanders and college managers never see individual answers. Results are reported for groups of 10 or more only.

5. Your result is yours. Only you see it. A colour goes to the support office only if you choose to share it, and you can withdraw it.

6. Help is close. Help numbers are on every result. A nurse can contact you if you ask.

7. Approved and supervised. Ethics approval number: [to be added]. Researcher: WEDAH, BSc Nursing with Military Health, DCHS. Supervisor and ethics committee contacts: [to be added]. The study follows the Data Protection Act, 2019.

8. One limit. If you tell a nurse that you or someone else is in immediate danger, the nurse may need to act to keep people safe.

Study contacts (shown on every sheet):

- Principal investigator: WEDAH, BSc Nursing with Military Health student, Defence College of Health Sciences (DCHS), NDU-Kenya. Phone/email: [to be added].
- Supervisor: [name, title, phone, email].
- Ethics committee: [name of the committee that reviews this study, address, phone, email]. Approval number: [to be added].
- NACOSTI research licence number: [to be added].

Information sheet and consent: DCHS student wellbeing check

For students aged 18 or older who are enrolled in any programme at the Defence College of Health Sciences (DCHS).

What is this study about?

Many students find a health-sciences programme with military discipline hard: a heavy workload, clinical placements, exams, money worries and time away from home. Asking for help early often makes the difference between staying and leaving. This study tests a short, private wellbeing check on your phone, with a nurse call-back and short lessons, to see whether it is easy to use, trusted, and useful in getting help early.

This is not an assessment. It does not affect your marks, progression, discipline, sponsorship, posting or place.

What will I be asked to do?

Answer questions on your phone (or on paper) about your mood, worry, stress, sleep, alcohol, money, thoughts about the course, and coping. It takes about 12 minutes. You will see a result that only you can read, with ideas for what to do next. You may be invited to repeat it about every four weeks and to answer a one-minute weekly pulse. At the end you may give feedback on how the service worked.

There are three places where you can write your own suggestions. They are optional and help improve the service. Please do not write names or details that could identify anyone.

Optional choice 1. You may choose to share one colour (green, amber or red) with the DCHS student-support office, so that they can offer help early. Only the colour is shared, never your scores or answers. You will see what would be shared before you decide, and you can withdraw it later.

Optional choice 2. You may agree that the college registry's designated officer tells the research team, using your private code only, whether you stayed in the programme. This is used to see whether early support helps students stay.

Is it voluntary?

Yes. You can decline, skip any question or stop at any time, and nothing will happen to you. Lecturers, examiners and commanders do not recruit you and do not see who took part. The college has given a written undertaking that results will not be used for marks, progression or discipline. [Attach the signed DCHS letter of support.]

What are the risks?

Some questions are about mood, frightening events, alcohol, money and loans, and home. They may make you feel uncomfortable. You can choose Prefer not to say where it is shown, and you can stop at any time. Help numbers are on every result screen. If your answers suggest you may be in danger, the phone shows help numbers straight away. Nobody is told unless you choose to ask a nurse to contact you.

Money questions ask whether you have borrowed from an informal lender and whether anything was kept as security. We do not ask for a lender's name or place. You never have to answer these questions.

What are the benefits?

You see your own result and get ideas for support. You can ask a nurse to contact you, ask a question without giving your name, and use short lessons on sleep, stress, exams and money. Your answers will help the college design better support for students.

How will my information be kept private?

No name, admission number or phone number is stored with your answers. You get a private code (for example STUD-0001) that is the next number in order of joining and is linked to no name. Your answers are stored in a secure database that only the research team can read. Results are reported as group findings only; groups smaller than 10 are not reported.

The college sees nothing about you unless you choose to share a colour.

Limits of confidentiality. If you ask a nurse to contact you and tell the nurse that you are at immediate risk of serious harm to yourself or someone else, the nurse may need to take steps to keep you or others safe, and will explain this to you. Answers already sent cannot be traced back to you, so they cannot be removed one by one.

Data are handled under the Data Protection Act, 2019. Anonymous research data will be kept for [number] years after the study and then deleted. Phone numbers given for a call-back are deleted [30] days after your request is closed.

Who can I contact?

Principal investigator: WEDAH, BSc Nursing with Military Health student, Defence College of Health Sciences (DCHS), NDU-Kenya. Phone/email: [to be added].

Supervisor: [name, title, phone, email].

Ethics committee: [name of the committee that reviews this study, address, phone, email]. Approval number: [to be added].

NACOSTI research licence number: [to be added].

Consent statements (tick each box)

☐ I am 18 years or older and enrolled at DCHS.

☐ I have read this information (or it has been read to me) and I have had a chance to ask questions.

☐ I understand that taking part is voluntary, that it is not an assessment, and that I can stop at any time without anything happening to me.

☐ I agree to answer the wellbeing check, and for my anonymous answers to be used for research.

☐ OPTIONAL: I may choose, at the end, to share one colour with the DCHS student-support office. (Yes / No)

☐ OPTIONAL: I agree that the college registry's designated officer may tell the research team whether I stayed in the programme, using my private code. (Yes / No)

No name or signature is asked for. Ticking the boxes is your agreement. On the phone, the same statements appear on screen and you tap to agree; the app stores only the version number and time of consent, not a name.

PART B. QUESTIONNAIRES

81	How likely would you be to talk to a friend or classmate?
82	How likely would you be to talk to a lecturer, course leader or commander?
83	How likely would you be to use a private phone service?
84	How likely would you be to talk to nobody at all?
85	Over the last 12 months, have arguments or tension at home become better or worse?
86	In the last 12 months, has anyone at home hurt, threatened or frightened you?
87	Have you worried that your own anger or drinking has hurt or frightened someone at home?
88	What would make this service more useful to you? (You may leave this blank.)
89	Is there anything about the college, or about this study, that you would like to suggest or change? (You may leave this blank.)
90	Is there a question we should have asked, or one that was hard to understand? (You may leave this blank.)
91	While answering, I worried my answers might affect my place or progress on the course.
92	While answering, I felt I should answer so that I look well.
93	I answered these questions honestly.
94	I believe the college staff who teach, mark or discipline me cannot see my individual answers.

C2. How printed copies are handled

- Printed copies are for students without a smartphone, or who prefer paper. The printed form has no name or number field.
- Hand out the information sheet first and let the student read the protections. Consent is by tick-box. No signature is taken, so no name is recorded.
- Students complete the form alone and drop it into a sealed box. No lecturer, examiner or commander is present at the box.
- The researcher opens the box in the presence of the supervisor or a witness, counts the forms, and types them into the same questionnaire (KoboToolbox data-entry form) on a laptop. Each paper form is given the next number (P-001, P-002) written in the corner, and the paper forms are then kept locked until the end of the study and destroyed as the ethics committee directs.
- Printed forms cannot show a colour result or offer a call-back by themselves, so the back page carries help numbers (placeholders +2547xxxxxxxx until adopted) and a tear-off slip: 'I would like a nurse to contact me' with a number to call.

C3. Suggestions register (kept by the researcher)

Every comment from the three suggestion boxes, the end-of-pilot form and the expert sheets is entered here, coded into a theme, and given a decision with a reason. Adopted changes are recorded in the change log with a new protocol version.

Date	Source (box 1, 2, 3, end-of-pilot, expert sheet)	Suggestion (no names)	Theme	Decision (adopt now / adopt later / decline)	Reason	Protocol version if adopted

PART D. PROTOCOLS, SCORING AND TEMPLATES

D1. Safety protocol for the nurse call-back

When the service must act

Red band or any thought of self-harm (PHQ-9 item 9 above zero): the phone shows help numbers at once and offers a same-day call-back. Same-day call-back requests: the nurse aims to make first contact within [8] hours. Routine requests: within [7] days. Anonymous questions: reply within [2] working days.

Who is on call, and when

Cover hours: [07:00 to 21:00, every day], by a rota of [two] trained nurses with the nurse lead as back-up. The times in this protocol are counted from when a request is received during cover hours. A request received outside cover hours is counted from the start of the next cover period.

Outside cover hours: the phone says so and shows the duty medical officer, the emergency number and the national lines. A red-band result or any thought of self-harm also sends a flag to the duty medical officer by the route agreed with the hospital [to be confirmed]. The study does not promise overnight nurse cover. If no after-hours route is agreed, the pilot runs on the cover hours above and the information sheet says so.

Load check: at every steering group meeting the nurse lead compares requests per week with nurse minutes. If the rota cannot meet the targets, enrolment is paused until it can.

What the nurse does

1. Introduce yourself, confirm it is a safe time to talk, and say what is private and the limits of confidentiality.

2. Ask directly and calmly about thoughts of suicide, plans, means and intent. Asking does not put the idea in a person's head.

3. Ask about safety at home and about threats from lenders. Keep messages and call logs as evidence when the person agrees.

4. Agree a safety plan: who to call, where to go, what to remove or hand over, what to do tonight. Give the numbers on the card.

5. Arrange a visit (target within [48] hours for high risk) with the medical officer or psychiatrist, and book it before the call ends. Record the time of first contact and of the visit.

6. Follow up within [72] hours, and again after the visit. Close the request only when the person is linked to care or declines care.

If the person cannot be reached

Call [3] times over [2] hours and send one neutral message (no mention of the service name if the phone may be shared). For red or same-day requests, tell the duty medical officer, who decides on a welfare check by the agreed route. The consent form tells people that this may happen. Record every attempt.

Imminent danger

If the person is in danger now: stay on the line, call the duty medical officer and the police (999 or 112), and arrange transport to the nearest health facility. Do not leave the person alone.

After the call

Debrief with the clinical supervisor the same day. Nurses who take red-band calls have access to supervision and rest. The ethics focal person is told of every serious event within [24 hours], with no identifying detail.

D2. Colour bands and what happens next

Band	Zone	How it is reached	What the person is offered
Green: Coping well	Zone 1	No flagged support need. PHQ-9 and GAD-7 below 5 and life pressures below the high level.	Lessons, weekly pulse, check again in about 4 weeks.
Amber: Feeling the strain	Zone 2	PHQ-9 or GAD-7 of 5 or more, or a high life-pressure load, with no moderate or high-risk flag.	Small steps, lessons, ask the nurse, welfare navigator.
Amber: Struggling	Zone 3	Moderate flag: PHQ-9 10 to 19, GAD-7 10 or more, PC-PTSD-5 positive (3 or more), AUDIT-C 4 or more, unsafe at home, or worry that own anger or drinking affects home.	Nurse call-back offered within 7 days.
Red: Needs care now	Zone 4	High flag: any thought of being better off dead or of self-harm; PHQ-9 of 20 or more; or PHQ-9 of 15 or more with GAD-7 10 or more or a positive trauma screen.	Same-day call-back offered (target 8 hours), help numbers shown, safety protocol.

Money items (informal borrowing, security held, lost-card report, threats) do not change the band. They trigger money and welfare help. The colour band shared with the college support office is: Green = zone 1; Amber = zones 2 and 3; Red = zone 4.

Use of the colour. The colour is a prompt to offer support early. It is never a pass or fail, never used to select or exclude, and is shared with the college support office only if the person chooses. The selection panel does not see answers or scores.

D3. Objectives-to-tools matrix

Objective	Tools that collect the data	Main analysis
1. Adapt the service and questions to DCHS students	Expert review sheet (five DCHS staff); testing with 10 to 15 students; three open suggestion boxes; comment box in the end-of-pilot form	Content validity index; reading and timing results; suggestions register (themes and decisions)
2. Run a pilot at DCHS (4 weeks to 3 months)	Service log recorded by the database: requests, status times, visits; weekly engagement counts; change log	Counts and proportions; run charts; fidelity to the protocol
3. Measure uptake, time to contact, referral completion, usability, perceived confidentiality, help-seeking intention	Usage events; call-back clock (database); baseline and end-of-pilot help-seeking and confidentiality items; end-of-pilot form with System Usability Scale and acceptance (UTAUT) items	Median hours to first contact and proportion within target; proportion of requests reaching a visit; SUS mean (68 benchmark); paired comparison of intention and confidentiality
4. Describe stressors students name, including money, loans and reasons for thinking of leaving	Money, loans and bills items; tick-up-to-3 stressor list; stressor in own words; weekly pulse cue; thoughts-of-leaving items	Frequencies by month and year group; cross-tabulation with colour band; thematic analysis of own-words text
5. Describe change over the pilot; explore links between baseline signals and early exit (support, not exclusion)	Student check at baseline and follow-up; thoughts-of-leaving items; perceived consequences and honesty items; registry outcome file (code, status, month, reason) if agreed	Paired t-test or Wilcoxon on PHQ-9, GAD-7, AUDIT-C and resilience; exploratory Firth logistic regression for early exit
6. Costed adoption plan and policy brief	Cost log (nurse minutes, training, airtime and data, hosting)	Cost per active user and per contact; scale-up scenarios; policy brief

D4. Cost and service log template (completed weekly by the nurse lead)

Date	Staff member (role)	Activity (call-back, visit, training, supervision, admin)	Minutes	Airtime or data (KES)	Other cost (KES, describe)
